

Most small departments track patrol activity on paper, in a spreadsheet, or in someone's head. The tools built to fix that were designed for agencies ten times your size, and priced that way.

Ten19 sits between the notebook and a full CAD or records management system. It captures what officers actually do on shift, passes it cleanly to the next shift, gives supervisors a real record to review, and turns the whole thing into the report your chief takes to council. It replaces three or four separate subscriptions with one system that costs less than any of them.

WHAT IT DOES

Patrol activity logging

Officers log stops, checks and calls in seconds from a phone or a laptop in the car. Built to be faster than the paper it replaces, not another chore.

Shared operating picture

A live pass along board so the oncoming shift knows what the last one saw. No more shift briefings rebuilt from memory.

Supervisor review and approval

Sergeants see activity as it happens and approve or send back entries. A defensible record of who did what, and who reviewed it.

House checks with resident notice

Log vacation and welfare checks, and optionally notify the resident that an officer stopped by. A visible community win with almost no added work.

Fleet and maintenance tracking

Service intervals, repair history and vehicle assignment in the same system, so nothing gets missed between shifts.

Council ready reporting

Activity totals, trends and coverage compiled automatically. The monthly report stops being someone's Sunday night.

WHERE IT CAME FROM

Ten19 did not start in a conference room. It started on a ride along, watching an officer fill out the same information three times in three places. Every screen in it has been shaped by working officers, sergeants and chiefs in departments the same size as yours. If something in it feels like it was designed by someone who has never worked a shift, tell us and it gets fixed.

HOW IT STARTS

1. Walkthrough

Thirty minutes, built around your own shifts and your own beats. Bring a sergeant.

2. We move your data

Existing spreadsheets and logs come across. You do not start from an empty system.

3. Live in weeks

Training for every officer is included. Most departments are running inside a month.

WHAT IT REPLACES

A scheduling subscription

Shift patterns, assignments and coverage, without a second vendor and a second invoice.

A fleet tracking tool

Per vehicle maintenance software billed separately from everything else you run.

The spreadsheet nobody trusts

The shared file that only one person knows how to update, and that no one can audit.

EVERYTHING IS INCLUDED

Implementation, import of your existing spreadsheets, training for every officer, ongoing support and all future updates. No setup fee, no per user charge, no upsell.

SIMPLE, PREDICTABLE PRICING

One flat annual price based on the number of sworn officers, alignable to the July 1 fiscal year. Build a quote for your department in under a minute at thepathshift.com.

EASY TO WALK AWAY FROM

Full refund inside 90 days. Cancel any time with 30 days notice. Your data is yours and exports in open formats on request, always.

See it on your own data

A 30 minute walkthrough, built around how your department already runs its shifts. No obligation and no sales team, you are talking to the person who builds it.
